The Internship Gap: Addressing the Challenge

1 Limited Internship Opportunities

Currently, less than 25% of students are able to secure internships, leaving the majority without the critical hands-on experience needed to succeed after graduation.

2 Geographical Barriers

Traditional on-site internships often limit student participation due to geographical constraints, making it difficult for students to gain valuable experience.

3 Insufficient Industry Exposure

Without sufficient internship opportunities, many students graduate with limited understanding of the professional world, hindering their job prospects and career development.
